Thanks. Did you get the results? Can you share the results?

Hi Rob.

All was fine in Washington Heights - it's good to live in places that acknowledge how high you are. A few downed trees but all in all we were very fortunate. I hope all was OK with you and your family.

Although it wasn't specifically planned to check impacts from Sandy, we just completed our final bathymetry survey of the backfill area on 11/6 & 7, so that will serve as a check on a combination of potential losses from the removal of the sheetpile enclosure (of which based on visual observations there was very little sediment adhered to the piles - amazingly enough) as well as any potential movement from Sandy. Sorry for my delay in getting back to you.

Any questions please let me know.
Thanks,
Elizabeth

Liz:

Is there anything planned to evaluate the impact on the Phase 1 backfill?

Hope you are well.
